(iv) Carry and employ dip nets to handle turtles.
(b) Encourage vessel to adopt FAD designs which reduce the incidence of entanglement of turtles;
(c) Require vessel to record incidents involving marine turtles in the logbooks and report incidents to authorities of the CPC.

Oman is a member of the IOSEA, and present every year its National Report to this International Convention. Please see Reports of Oman submitted in 2024.

Futhermore, on top of the offical reports and follow up, there are several conservation organizations working in Oman to protect these endangered species, namely the Environment Society of Oman (ESO), Five Oceans Environmental Services, and the Marine Research Foundation. These groups aim to raise awareness about the impact of human activities on turtle nesting grounds and educate about conservation efforts on an individual level. They also work closely with government stakeholders such as the Ministry of Environment and Climate Affairs and the Ministry of Agriculture and Fisheries Wealth. Conservation activities can also have tangible economic benefits for local residents; for example, ESO's Turtle Research and Conservation project on Masirah Island primarily employs local residents. The Ras al Jinz Turtle Reserve was established in 2008 as an eco-tourism project whose revenue helps conserve green turtle nests. Leaders in sea turtle conservation in Oman are hopeful about the prospects of the species' revival and look to the successes of similar historical efforts. The Ras al Jinz Turtle Reservewas established in 2008 as an eco-tourism project whose revenue helps conserve green turtle nests. Leaders in sea turtle conservation in Oman are hopeful about the prospects of the species' revival and look to the successes of similar historical efforts.

g. CPCs continue to undertake research and development to improve the mitigation of adverse affects on marine turtles & provide research outcomes to the Scientific Committee.

- Yes

The objectives of this programme are:

To undertake regular beach surveys on Masirah Island to record and monitor population trends, nesting activity and threats to nesting turtles.

To define and implement initiatives designed to mitigate threats to the sea turtle population nesting on Masirah.

To advocate for changes at the local and government level that will support sea turtle conservation.

To increase education, community engagement and support for wider sea turtle awareness across Oman.

Species of sea turtles found in Oman are threatened to various degrees on the IUCN Red List of Threatened Species and face a high risk of extinction in the wild. Threats including extensive coastal development, light pollution, beach driving, bycatch, ghost fishing, plastic pollution and climate change, are putting significant pressure on the survival of sea turtles. In recent years, a declining trend in nesting numbers of loggerhead sea turtles has been observed on Masirah Island, representing a statistically significant 79% decline, which is believed to have occurred within a single loggerhead generation.

ESO, in collaboration with the Environment Authority (EA), has been working to counteract this loss, through conserving the species, maintaining a healthy marine environment, and preserving the socioeconomic balance of communities. This long term programme has been funded by the US Fish and Wildlife Service and implemented with the help of international and local collaborators including Ocean Ecology Network, Five Oceans Environmental Services LLC and Future Seas Global SPC. Through dedicated field surveys, our field teams monitor seasonal nesting activities and beach disturbances, enabling us to accelerate our knowledge and understanding of turtle biology, ecology and conservation needs. This programme has also spearheaded a range of activities to tackle the threats these turtles face including:

- Dedicated net clean-ups ahead of turtle nesting seasons in an attempt to mitigate the threat of entanglement and ingestion for nesting females and hatchlings.
- Awareness videos designed to raise awareness about the correlation between a healthy ocean and a healthy community.
- Community outreach programmes with children, women’s groups, fishermen and other community leaders.

Most recently, we have expanded our work to include work on light pollution and initiated a programme for university students and recent graduates with an environmental biology degree aimed at exposing them to conservation-relevant science.

Measures taken and the implementation progress for artisanal (coastal) IOTC fisheries:

As announced to the 2024 CoC and the 2024 Commission, and lately as presented to the WGDCS in Capetown last year in November 2024, Oman has taken relevant measures to improve the data collection, and to review its current data collection and statistics system with a view to restart to report to the IOTC in accordance with IOTC resolutions. In the last meeting of the 26th Session of the Working Party on Tropical Tunas Data Preparatory Meeting, Oman reported that "is internally reviewing its sampling protocol, with adjustments to data from 2014 where catches may have been underestimated", in particular, in relation to yellowfin catches, as was included in the Minutes of the Meeting.

Over the recent months the Department of Fisheries Statistics and Information of the Ministry of Agriculture, Fisheries and Water Resources, Directorate General of Fisheries Research, (hereinafter, the "MAFWR"), has been working on this task with a view of presenting a full report to the WP of Data Collection and Statistics (IOTC WPDCS) in Cape Town, at the end of November 2024.

In this respect MAFWR hired the services of an external data expert, a senior fisheries consultant in fisheries data and statistics. His terms of reference were to prepare and present a Preliminary Report at the 26th Session of the WPTT (Seychelles, 28 October – 2 November 2024), conduct a retrospective data analysis for 2014-2023 and present a full Report at the IOTC Working Party on Data and Statistics (WPDCS) at the end of November 2024.

The Consultant travelled to Oman in September 2024 and conducted a first review of the national fisheries statistical programme. The result of this visit was a Preliminary Report which was presented in video-conference at the 26th Session of the WPTT that took place in Seychelles during 28 October–2 November 2024. Next, the Consultant completed the system review and the retrospective analysis and prepared the present finalised report with the support of the MAFWR.

The Consultant evaluated the current data collection system, verified its compliance with regional and international standards, evaluated the related Oracle database and the statistical reports resulting from it, and conducted a retrospective data analysis for the period 2014-2023. The results of the analysis were presented at the 20th Session of the WPDCS, held in Cape Town during 26-30 November 2024. Section 7 describes in full the methodology that was used in the data analysis process.

The minutes show that Oman has made a number of commitments to the IOTC WPDCS, all of them for the short- and medium terms. I list those that come immediately to my mind, and without prioritizing them.

- (a) Consolidating the Oracle database.
- (b) Producing final official figures.
- (c) Improving the data collection system (effort).
- (d) Making detailed and aggregated results publicly available.
- (e) Re-start regular submission of data to the IOTC

The minutes of the Report of the WPDCS Cape Town 224 include all these points.
